

A NEW WAY TO TRAVEL BETWEEN CHICAGO
AND 50
SUBURBS WITHOUT DRIVING

Presenting two new Chicago and North Western and CTA city/suburb rail interchanges.

Live in or near a C&NW suburb?
Now you can travel to most of Chicago
without driving.

Live in Chicago? Travel to 50 C&NW suburbs without driving.

Through these rail interchanges, you transfer smoothly between C&NW suburban trains and modern CTA rapid transit trains without fighting traffic or bad weather.

Study the "Northwest Passage" and Jeff Park maps. Two more ways the Chicago and North Western and CTA help make metropolitan Chicago a great place to get around in.

Northwest Passage links C&NW and CTA rails

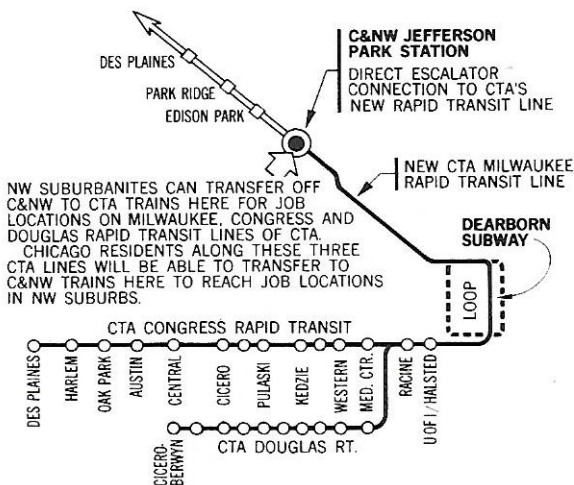

Here's how it works.

- 1. Two new interchanges provide you with all-weather access between the C&NW and CTA at two convenient stations in the city.
- 2. "Northwest Passage," a carpeted passageway with escalators and piped-in music links the downtown North Western station with the CTA's Clinton St. station on the Lake-Dan Ryan rapid transit line. It provides you with rail-to-rail service between more than 50 C&NW suburbs and Chicago's south, west and north sides.
- 3. Jeff Park interchange links the CTA Congress, Douglas and Milwaukee transit lines directly to the C&NW served suburbs of Park Ridge, Des Plaines, Mt. Prospect, Arlington Heights, Palatine, Barrington, Crystal Lake and beyond.
- 4. If you live on the Northwest line of C&NW, and work along any of the CTA bus routes fanning out from Jefferson Park station (see map at right), you can take a dependable C&NW train and CTA bus to and from your job as easily as if you worked in the Loop.

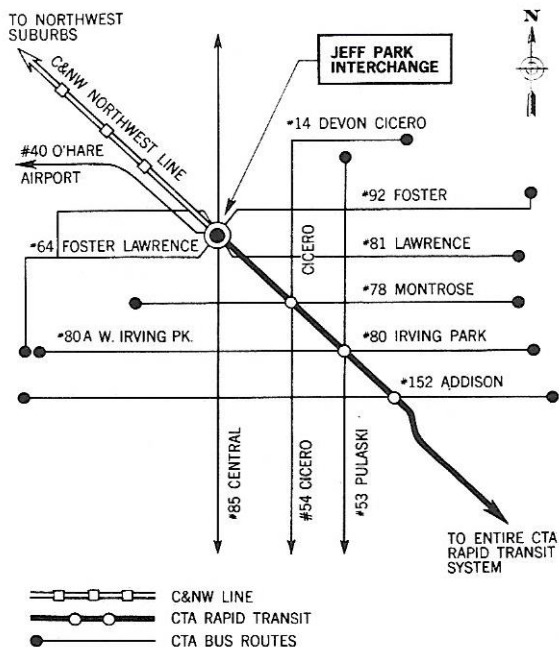

So why fight bad weather, city traffic and the expressway mob. Go North Western and CTA! We'll get you where you want to go—fast, dependably and comfortably.
