

BIG STRETCH.

It's a bus and a half for a two-week test by CTA.

BIG STRETCH goes to great lengths to seat you.

Welcome aboard!

Specially designed for needs of cities such as Chicago. Engineered to accommodate more passengers in a bus-and-a-half that's actually more maneuverable than a conventional bus!

Big Stretch is long, all right. Long enough to seat about six football teams. The entire population of Flying H, New Mexico. Or 63 delighted Chicagoans.

From July 22 to Aug. 3, you'll catch Big Stretch operating regularly on four heavily-traveled routes. With wider doorways, two separate rear exits and lower first steps to make getting on and off more convenient. And many more comfortable seats.

This Big Stretch was built to meet the needs of Duesseldorf, Germany. If the idea catches on in Chicago, ours would feature such added CTA comforts as air conditioning.
